“FULL GAS CUT-OFF CREATES 41% DAMAGE!”

SEPTEMBER 14 / 2022

Dr. Lokman Kantar and Dr. Kenan Sentürk, faculty members at Istanbul Gelisim University, evaluated the possible dangers that await European countries in the event of a gas cut by Russia.

Upon the cessation of operations at the Zaporizhia Nuclear Power Plant, which is under Russian control, production at Europe’s largest nuclear power plant was completely terminated. The Russia-Ukraine War, which started in the first months of 2022, caused increases in the prices of gas and oil imported from Russia, especially wheat products. Asst. Prof. Dr. Lokman Kantar from Istanbul Gelisim University stated that the dependence of European Union countries on Russia’s energy resources is about 30%. Asst. Prof. Dr. Kenan Sentürk, on the other hand, emphasized that the emerging Ukraine-Russia crisis may cause a review of the situation in energy policies in countries such as Germany, which needs Russian gas, and that the interest in nuclear energy can be expected to increase in these countries.
