News from Our Alumni

Hi! It is Refik Mert Uyuseven...

I graduated from Istanbul Gelisim University, School of Applied Sciences, Department of Television Journalism and Programming in 2019. As of 2020, I am also proud that our School continues its education life as a Faculty. After my graduation, I personally experienced that Istanbul Gelisim University never cuts off its ties with its graduate students and helps with job opportunities, and I have been working full-time at Istanbul Gelisim University Distance Education Application and Research Center since 2020.

I would like to say that I have seen many support and benefits of Gelisim University during my undergraduate life, which I started in the Department of Television Journalism and Programming, which was opened in 2015. I would also like to say that the biggest advantage of studying in a School in Applied Sciences is that the lessons are practice-oriented and that there are sufficient application areas thanks to this. In the Shooting Techniques and News Gathering classes, performing application assignments as if I were working on a real television channel and making programs with the "live broadcast" facilities in the studio allowed me to gain a lot of experience before I graduated.

During my education, I had the opportunity to study in Guarda, Portugal, in the 3rd year with the Erasmus Student Exchange Program of Gelisim University. After I successfully completed all my courses and returned to my country, all the courses I took there were counted and I graduated without losing a semester. At the same time, when I was a student, I took part in various activities of the university (camera, photography, live broadcast directing and so on). By establishing the Camera and Shooting student club, we had the opportunity to do many activities and practice and reinforce with my friends.

I was able to be prepared for the sector very well throughout my education life, both with the diversity of the equipment and the qualified staff of expert academics. On behalf of myself and my friends, I would like to express my gratitude to the studio chief, Kadir Tiryaki, for his smiling face, vast knowledge and always helping students with studio opportunities.

Another opportunity our university provides to its graduate students is to receive a Master's degree. I am still doing my master's degree in the New Media Communication and Journalism program at Istanbul Gelisim University Graduate Education Institute with the scholarship opportunity given to the graduate students by the Board of Trustees, and I am at the thesis stage. I sincerely thank the family of Istanbul Gelisim University, who have had a direct impact on my educational life.

Interview

Kanal D News Correspondent İbrahim Konar:

"If you see journalism as a lifestyle rather than a profession, then you will have done this job completely... The troubles, happiness, success or failure of others are now your concern..."

Dear İbrahim Konar, first of all, we would like to thank you for accepting our UBF Monthly e-bulletin interview request. Let's get straight to the point, could you please tell us the reasons that made you turn to journalism?

Mustafa Kemal Atatürk's phrase "The Press is the Common Voice of the Nation" is a sentence that impressed me a lot. A journalist is the one who conducts research on every subject on behalf of the society, closely follows the world and country agenda, and monitors all kinds of innovations moment by moment. This discipline makes journalism very different from other professions. This is exactly the reason why I chose this profession...

Journalism is being a profession from within life, witnessing history, making important issues reach millions, providing a very good opportunity to communicate/interact with people and preparing a new environment for personal development every day... These are the topics that make me more committed to this profession. brings. That's why I think that the microphone we hold in our hands as a television reporter is actually a world rather than a device...

Interview

Mr. Konar, do you think it is really necessary to "give heart" for the profession of journalism? And why?

If you look at journalism only as a profession, the things you think about are usually your insurance premium, working hours and salary... Of course, these are very important... But if you see journalism as a lifestyle rather than a profession, then you will have done it completely... Other people's worries, happiness, success or its failure concerns you closely... As a matter of fact, what you see from your own window becomes your most important capital, the building blocks of your profession... Making news that you believe, trust and own will bind you to your profession more closely...

So, as a phenomenon and practice that has been increasing in recent years, how do you think "Digitalization" has contributed positively and negatively to the journalism profession?

Digitization has actually made journalism easier to do. I think very important advantages are the rapid transmission of information and images and the presentation of instant developments through different communication tools. Especially during the Covid-19 Pandemic period, it was a period that broke the ground in journalism. When it was impossible to meet with experts and guests due to the epidemic, this situation became very easy with the options offered by the digital world.

We conducted most of our interviews remotely, with artists giving concerts from home while experts taught from home. In other words, this difficult process has been overcome with digitalization. As the positive aspects of digitalization; we can say that the increase in news sources, easier access to the news, increase in the quality of the news, disappearance of the distance and more people watching the news on different platforms.

Interview

The negative aspects can be listed as the false information spreads very quickly and misleads the public, unfounded allegations cast a shadow over the reality of the news, and black propaganda is made on some issues. It also should be noted that all information must be confirmed before it is published. Otherwise, the possibilities offered by the digital world can turn into a nightmare.

Mr. Konar, what do you think is “Media Literacy”? What are your thoughts on the subject?

The broadcasts that we watch, the radios we listen, the newspapers that we read, the magazines, the websites we follow, and dozens of others... In fact, while all of them are tools for us, most of the time we can be tools. In other words, we are exposed to information that is imposed on us without fully realizing it. However, media literacy is our most important strength in this sense... The number of courses in schools needs to be increased and the teaching staff consisting of communication faculty graduates needs to be increased.

The definition of “media literacy” was created for traditional media. Devices and platforms in mass media are constantly changing. With digitalization, the power of social media is increasing day by day. For this reason, “media literacy” studies for the virtual world should be expanded very quickly and the penalties should be deterrent.

Interview

Lastly, Dear İbrahim Konar, what would you recommend to our young students who want to be journalists?

Being extraordinary is the important difference of this job. It is necessary to stay away from every hunched structure. We should focus on improving ourselves in the professional field by constantly reading and researching. Patience, love of work, an inquisitive spirit, love of the world, a curious perspective and perseverance are the most important building materials that build this profession... Learning more than one foreign language and visiting are indispensable... ... With the internship, those big doors open to the end... Therefore, when you find an environment where you can practice your profession, you should stick there like a tick... You should be extremely open to interaction and have knowledge about everything...

Dear İbrahim Konar, we would like to thank you very much for the very meaningful and valuable information you have given us in your busy schedule...

Thank you very much for including me in such a meaningful project. I would like to express my gratitude to all scholars and my dear student friends.

Waste turned into art at Istanbul Airport...

Although sustainability sensitivity is increasing all over the world, it is still not at a sufficient level to stop the climate crisis and build a better future. It is critical to draw attention to the issue through art. Deniz Sađdıç's "Zero Point Exhibition" is one of those important works... The exhibition, where wastes such as old uniforms, buttons, plastic boxes and bags collected at Istanbul Airport, which meet the visitors at Istanbul Airport and bear the brands of İGA and its stakeholders, turn into art. is met with intense interest from passengers. A portion of the revenue from the sales of the works will be used in İGA's Corporate Social Responsibility projects.

Linkedin is preparing to organize events like Clubhouse, which made a lot of noise...

The LinkedIn platform will make a lot of noise and, together with the latest developments, will bring together the new, live broadcast events in the virtual environment with its users. With this step, it is thought that new trainings, webinars and various events will be held on LinkedIn. In the feature, which will be offered in the in-house tools created by LinkedIn, users will be able to communicate with each other during and after the events, but users who are meeting hosts will be able to manage the discussions. Although the event tickets are free at the first stage, LinkedIn has stated that it will be working on an improvement that will cost the ticket.
